April 2021

1 Checking up on the calendar

1.1 Whats on track

The first addition (the test one) is done, though there were some road bumps that may have been caused by the test suite previously failing. Spent some extra time looking into these failing tests and writing a report on why I believe them to be failing. I have a new goal for the "main" addition to dafny and have made some progress into it. I have begun drafting out ideas for how to structure the meeting for the minds talk.

1.2 What is behind

I am a little further behind with planning for the meeting of the minds, but am sure that I will be able to make the upcoming deadlines. I also have some questions on the format: What exactly is the "poster" is it just the slides from the presentation as one slide, is the video optional or not, is there a choice between a video and a live presentation? Additionally a little further behind with the dafny additions due to the additional factors mentioned above, but should still be possible to complete all on time.

1.3 This week and after

This week will have a heavy focus on getting the dafny feature up to par. I will also try to have a draft of my presentation and the abstract done by friday. After that I will be sticking with my original roadmap shown in the last meeting.
